Ukens Utvalgte

The Nordic nations, Norway included, are closely integrated with Europe, - mainly since the start of the Nordic union 500 years ago. Despite external rivaling causing internal diversities in periods, the fundamentals in culture, knowledge and agreements does not leave any doubt. Passing confusions about the history, mainly due to post-war version, should not corrupt anyone's conscience anymore. Yet, there are symptoms. In this UU, a 'National (Life-)Quality' will be talked through with extended use of the 3x3 'ego-state' model on the Norwegian parliamentary system in Nordic and European relations.

The use of the 3x3 ego-state models on organizations and nations is initially talked through in UU 2014.aug.08 and continued in the following. The collective human nature at organizational and national levels are not the same as for individuals. However, some kinds of relations should apply since organizations and nations basically consists of persons, collective and inter-personal relations. Nonetheless, the focus will be on the parliamentarian legal system as a Freudian Superior-Ego state. 'Belief' is the social-psychological term in the new 3x3 model, which combines Freudian and Jungian theories. 'Belief' will be the substitute for Superior-Ego at national level even though it might seem strange.

The 3x3 ego-state Belief has 3 levels of Conscience. These relate to the parliamentarian legal system as; UnderConscience (UB) = Lawmaking Parliament, Conscience (CB) = Executing State and OverConscience (OB) = Judging legal systems. These parliamentary ego-states are extended with regulations, organizations, institutions, communes etc. The basic foundation for the parliamentary systems are legally bound to international laws and regulations like inter-governmental treaties, trade agreements, human rights and several agreements for exchanging knowledge, resources, diplomacy, work, security etc. In this sense, the nation-state has become less self-governing and more collaborating. To put it in Freud/Berne's terminology; the 'Child' has become less ego-centric and demanding with the growth of 'Parent' and given room for 'Adult' development.

The parliamentary system has a built-in Quality Assurance feedback-system that should do qualitative corrections automatically. Obviously, the parliamentary Belief system should be based on the 3 value-systems called Right/Constructive/Good, - and not Wrong/Destructive/Bad. The differences in opinions becomes somewhat clearer when it comes to important parliamentary decisions like elections, law making and budget negotiations. Nevertheless, these disagreements are normally due to different preferences and priorities within the 3 value systems. That is OK. That is how the parliamentary democracy works and no-one should claim that such difference in opinions and priorities are negative.

However, it happens that negative, corrupting or destructive laws and regulations do get adapted by the system. It might happen in relation to crises and hardcore political Games like CdE. The aim of the CdE Games is to corrupt and weaken the state before the coup. The symptoms of corrupted national states should be rather clear for external professionals, - just like psychologists and psychiatrists can diagnose individual humans. Some symptoms might be overprotection, nervous reactions, obsessions, illusions, dual 'personalities' like contradicting ethics, inconsequent behavior, dishonest appearance and actions etc. However, a more common reason for abnormal expressions can be due to concealed hardcore underworld games. For example, when a mafia of organized crimes threatens some parents, they might react 'strange' in order to live up to their obligations to the minors. The same applies for nations as well. Consequently, it can be quite reasonable why someone acts different than stated or expected when knowing the social-psychological Games at play.

As mentioned, - the (ego-) state of nations can be diagnosed. The state of the Norwegian nation will therefore be so according to its own parliamentary law making, the legal conscience and the legalities of its actions and expressions. Having an MSc degree on Norway's international constitutional relations to Europe in particular, it is appropriate to focus on that. The following 6 paragraphs are basically translations and summaries of previously description of the true legality of Norway in relation to most European nations.

"In 1994 the law-making parliament ratified the EEA law concerning the European internal market instead of becoming a full member of EU. The new rules of competition caused considerable legal and commercial changes, - especially for the 3 constitutional powers; the parliament, the public sector and the legal system. Suddenly, both private and public cartel practices became illegal. The adaptations to legal practices are comprehensive, - which such dominant actors naturally resist. Today, 20 years later, there are just minor practical adaptations to the law. The media rarely seems to mention such illegalities and leaves the impression is that the law is practically neglected." (UU 2013.nov.01.)

"The Constitutional Law, the Human Rights Law and the EEA Law are all superior in their areas and can be related to the Penalty Law. The article 30 and 34 of the EEA Law prohibits customs duties, discriminatory taxes and measures having equivalent effects. The rules of competition forbid undertakings' abuse of market dominance, abuse of competition and discriminating agreements (art. 53 and 54). Public undertakings are regulated as well as the none-public ones (art. 59). Unfair competitive public state aid to undertakings are forbidden (art. 61) and social support shall not be paid directly to any undertakings, but directly to the citizen (art. 61a)." (UU 2013.okt.04.) This means that alternatives to public service providers of schools, transport, health etc. became legal 20 years ago. However, illegal public discriminations are still discriminating in the markets in favor of own undertakings, oligocratic cartels and certain unions. A well-functioning parliamentary system would prosecuted and settled this a long time ago.

"The public sector and the Government are responsible for the legal regulation of the market. Practices however, indicate that there is not proper will and ability to legally regulate the collective resources and undertakings. Sometimes the results get anarchistic, like for the chaotic disasters caused by floods from water reservoirs of power suppliers. Similar negations are obvious in the two Mongstad projects in the oil markets where the project management seem to be delegated to some anti-powers of the EEA Law. The present government should initiate professional investigations by Riksrevisjonen (Office of auditors) and related according to the EEA Law. It is suspicious that Økokrim (Office of economic crime) do not have a section dedicated economic crimes in the public sector as it does for the private sector. Presumably there are hundreds of public mal-practices that should be legally prosecuted." (UU 2013.nov.01.)

Furthermore: "80% of the Nordic undertakings are 'Small and Medium sized (SME/SMB). These suffer from illegally 'abuse of market dominances'. Besides, the EEA law obligates public protection and support to SMEs because the regional local societies will extinct if their SMBs suffers. The past 20 years growth of cartels in the primary industry is the main reason for the decay in local agriculture, stores and other SMBs. Contrary to anti-European propaganda, the solution is to protect those by the EEA Law and not by SU inspired agricultural industrialization. The farmers do run their own SMBs." However, with legal use of LOA, the public sector's enormous market would not be closed for SMBs. That would save a lot of them and consequently the fundament for regional cultures, - in addition to higher qualities and lower prices for the public purchases.

"The public sector is legally obligated to the Law of Public Purchases (Lov om Offentlige Anskaffelser – LOA). The law is related to the EEA Law and the rules of competition. The public servants are obligated to LOA and irregularities can be personally prosecuted according to the Penalty Law (Straffeloven). The past 20 years of public IT (IKT) procurement and projects indicate massive illegalities and organized crime (see UU 2013.aug.23 and 2013.sept.27). Malpractices might be due to arguments related to the WTO/GATT treaties, - that practically do not have the EEA Law's protection against abusive cartels. How scandalous, but there is no proper tracks over public IT expenditures. SSB (Statens Sentral Byrå) assumes that 1/3 of the Norwegian IT expenditures are public, i.e. 75 mrd kr/year. Assumptions from Administrasjons Departementet (AD) was 1/10 of this. The costs for maintenance are by experience higher. In comparison, Sweden can document that less than 10% of the public IT investments are done according to the law for public tenders, and that outsourcing can cause 30-50% efficiency." (UU 2013.okt.25.)

The article 'Political corruption' mentions the infamous term 'cleptocracy'. The word suits well to the terminology in UU 2013.april.19. "The article mentions several types of corruption like; extortion, comradeship, scandalizing, electoral cheating, fraud, 'financial mess', bribery and mafia activities. Global corruptions concern mainly drug-trafficking, human smuggling and whitewashing of money. The annual global political corruption is estimated to be about 1 trillion $/year, the global GWP is about 70 trd $/y and the Norwegian GNP is about 1 trd Kr/y. This means that the Norwegian political corruption is about 2% of the state's budget, i.e. about 20 mrd kr/y. That suites the thumb-rule that there is an average of 2% disloyal employees."

Furthermore: "The Norwegian low score on CPI (Corruption Perceptions Index) can indicate that there are some types of corruptions the statistics do not discover or that the corruption is well concealed. There is no reason to assume that the public corruption is less than 2%." (UU 2013.april.26.) However, even though global crimes didn't use to concern national politics, - the concealed political agendas do appear as such in certain political parties more frequently. National political crimes seems more like the other types like; comradeship, espionage, sabotage and other sorts of sociopathic corruption. This includes selling important jobs, primary in public sector, to underqualified employees with alternative loyalties.

In addition, frequent headlines in papers are: "Corruption in EU costs 895 billion kr/y. How is the Norwegian 14 EEA billion used? 46 corruption cases discovered in 3 years, most are concealed. The technology counsels give the police the character 'Failed'. The problems are not to discover crime, but the investigations and prosecution. Norway violates the EEA agreement in spirit and letter, says EU parliament trade committee. Brussels is tired of Norwegian arrogance. Riksrevisjonen is now tired of the recurring institutions of social security, military and police. PST-data about thousands of people has to be re-evaluated due to data errors. Criminals infiltrate the public sector. PST warns against Russian spies. (The legal system) releases criminals and rejects criminal charges. The Norwegian police is amongst the world's most expensive, but least effective. There are more organized crime, but fewer are caught. Norway tries to push out Danish cheese with custom duty at 277%. The minister of agricultural says that the industry is like a communistic system where the public sector regulates everything". (The articles are mostly linked to Norwegian papers.)

A Diagnosis of the Norwegian parliamentary legal system, could indicate that it is alarmingly corrupted. The past 20 years with failures in knowledge and executions according to the EEA law's obligations are well documented. Furthermore, the 22/7 (terrorist) report documents thoroughly how unprofessional the public administration and leadership really is, and that it have not improved much since then (see UU 20141017). The violations of international is read daily in the news, but are seldom reported as such. All in all, the Super-Ego Belief shows too big differences of what the legality really is (UB), what it actually does (CB) and what it expresses (OB). Psychologically, the diagnosis could therefor very well be; obsessive delusional and mal-functional due to motoric/neural disorders. On the other hand, it might not be the client, but its relations that are the reasons. Other external supra-national powers are highly influential at S-E/Belief level. Like a highly manipulated person probably is quite sane despite the diagnoses, - national malfunctions can be due to concealed super-national manipulations. Like for individuals, social-psychological conditions are due to both heredity and environment. Therefore, new information about international history is important.

History is now much better documented than what was collectively communicated by the state monopolies in the post ww2 cold war. Now it is clearer that the parliamentary corruptions have been permanent and critical in the past 100 years. There are some interesting historical 5D milestones in the 1914-2014 period. The outbreak of ww1/ew1 and the CdE in Roma3 in 1914 also collapsed the European predecessor to UN and opened for Roma3 infiltration via its separatist organizations (ref UU 2013.feb.22). 1944 and the outbreak of ew2/ww2 and 4th degree Underworld CdE Games between several 'socialist' factions, including national-socialists (ref UU 2012.juni.08.). 1994 with the EEA Law re-connected Norway to the European nations. 2014 shows alarming obsessions of recreating a 'neo-Russia' by annexation of European nations. This is a major 5D milestone that can have several scenarios.

A present 5D legal factor is whether the Norwegian parliamentary system has sufficient conscience, ability and will to realize a healthy S-E Belief in time. An overall conscience of legally bounds to UN, EU/EEA and NATO is crucial to get out of the cold-war schizophrenic SU-US delusion and for collaboration with allies in future global rivalries. It is also critical in actions, expressions and judgment to leave no doubt that the nations are not a stalinist puppet states that can be remote controlled via sub-cultures. Just as important as the deluded obsessions of the past, - is to not get deluded obsessions about the future. There are several allied nations and international organizations that are able and willing to help. In order to get a grip and positive development, all Norway has to do is to reach out and get the share of all the European resources, projects, information, professional advisories etc. that the nation has paid for via EEA to EU.

A 5D crime factor is if the judging and executing powers are willing and able to reduce crime enough, - including the organized crime in the public sector. It is well documented and discussed in 2014.juni.13 that Stalin was no real statesman at all, but the most brutal mafia boss ever in the position as supreme commander of an empire. It is like if Al Capone became the US president, - a catastrophe to civilizations as any sane person can see clearly. All the crimes of terrorism, vandalism, robberies, and murders were legitimized for pro-Russian separatist sub-cultures. This dystopian role-model is still a major patriarch to such cultures. It is therefore crucial how the nations relate and act towards related criminal organizations and persons before the consequences get too destructive and irreversible. There are legitimate and legal reasons to why the Ukrainian government let 1 million corrupt public servants go after getting rid of the puppet president. No civilized nation should be alien to necessary innovations.

The band The Editors was unknown to me until I saw this video. It gives several associations. First of all, the band's name brings thoughts about the necessary qualitative re-writing of censored history in order to plan better for the future. Next, Papillon is a butterfly and probably a pet name for the writer's girl, which he is trying to comfort in a harsh situation. Furthermore, a 'butterfly effect' is an expression to an idea and philosophy that one change in a butterfly's flight can cause a cascade of changes globally. Moreover, - running from or to what - alone - together - alone - disappear - in faded colors like black & white. "It kicks like a sleep twitch". That's 3x3 5D poetry - indeed.

The Editors is an English post-punk band that was formed in 2002 by Tom, Russell, Ed, Justin and Elliott. They are compared to bands like Echo & the Bunnymen, Joy Division, Interpol, The Chameleons, U2 and R.E.M. The album got number one on the UK Albums Chart. The single 'Papillon' got top position in Belgium and was certified Gold. The Editors have so far released two platinum studio albums, and four in total, with several million combined sales.
