

Medina- Velkommen Til Medina

2015.Jan.23

Ukens Utvalgte

Medina is the burial place of the Islamic prophet Muhammad and the second holiest city in Islam. A Danish singer took the name Medina by advice of a numerologist. The erotic appearance has been controversial and upsetting to some local Muslims, - not as much as the infamous cartoons though. Anyways, Islam is not like the patriarchal rigid theology that men of Sharia law claims. The Muslim women are not as inferior that some theocrats claim and want. Actually, the Quran is written to jinns (spirits/demons) as well as humans and angels.

There are three recognized versions of the monotheistic belief; the Jewish, the Cristian and the Muslim. More than half of the world population believe in the religions that include belief in angels and demons. Consequently, the majority believe in the presence and influence of (at least) two other intelligence lifeforms that are older and probably more advanced than we are. None of them is exclusively good or bad though. Consequently, the term 'monotheism' is not quite correct. They are rather pantheistic, since they are mixed up with several Mediterranean polytheisms of Egypt, Persia and Europe. Still, there are several pre-Islamic demi-gods kept in the O.T., N.T. and Quran that still dominate some pantheistic sub-cultures (UU 2012.Mars.30).

Wikipedia seems quite honest, objective and enlightened concerning religions. Here is a summary about the jinns/spirits/demons: "In Islamic theology, jinn are said to be creatures with free will, made from smokeless fire by God/Allah. They are frequently mentioned in the Quran. Surah 72 is named after a jinn and has a passage about them. The Quran also mentions that Muhammad was a prophet to both "humanity and the jinn". Jinns are usually invisible to humans, but humans do appear clearly to them. Jinns will also be judged by God and be sent to Paradise or Hell according to their deeds." "The social organization of the jinn community also has kings, courts of law, weddings and other rituals. One common belief in Muslim lore lists five distinct orders of demons. 'Abd Allāh ibn Mas'ūd, who was by Muhammad when the jinn came to hear his recitation of the Quran, described them as resembling like vultures, snakes, demons, dragons or human form to mislead and destroy. Jinns are even believed to possess, manipulate and command humans." Since an angel dictated the Quran to a human and jinns were involved, - it is reasonable to ask if demons were involved in the editing of the Quran too.

As mentioned in the previous UU 2015.jan.15, all angels are fallen in the sense that even those that bowed for Adam had to face the consequences that Prophet Adam disobeyed God in the Garden of Eden. A second fall of the rest of the angels are unnoticed, though. However, a woman and a jinn, in the form of a snake, were left with the blame. Even the prophet Moses seems to be more influenced by a jinn than an angel, since the appearance of the God's messenger, the Lord, is of smokeless fire, a desert wind and has a wrathful temperament. The prophet Moses even smashed God's 10 commandments, which should be regarded an unforgivable sin and even blasphemy. Gabriel/Muhammad called Jesus a prophet and not 'son of God'. However, theologically, the appearance of angels at his birth indicates that he might have been a Nephilim. Neither angels, humans nor jinns are much in favor of such 'offsprings' of the 'sons of God' and the 'daughters of men', which ones were by the hundreds (O.T. Genesis 6:4). Anyways, Jesus was executed due to claims of blasphemy. Neither Jews nor Muslims recognize his divine Christian status. Neither Gabriel nor jinns do either, since the Quran is recognized by them too.

Most archetypical and influential is the patriarchal prophet Abraham, - and his three rivaling women. They gave birth to ancestors of the three monotheist versions. Abraham left the region of today's Iran/Iraq and claimed land in the warzone between Egypt and Arabia. He claimed that (the only) God gave it to him. He got his firstborn son Ishmael with the Egyptian Hagar. His second son Isaac was adopted by Sarah from some angels and became the Jewish ancestor. Finally, Abraham married Keturah and got six sons that became the ancestors of the Muslim tribes. (Ref UU 2013.aug.02 & UU 2011.april.15.)

Some basics of the Games at play are: Sarah's relation to Abraham is uncertain, except that she was presented as his sister to the Egyptian regime. Sarah became sterile and jealous with Hagar and had them cast out to the wastelands. Sarah adopted Isaac as her own son from two unnamed angels. However, Abraham claimed that God commanded him to execute Isaac, which was contra-dictated by an unnamed angel. The Testament of Isaac mention the archangel Michael, though. Finally, Abraham married to Keturah and got a large family. Since then, in 4000 years, the most violent and destructive Games of war have been referred to these culture and events. It has spread worldwide and does not seem to adopt any kind of peaceful settlement. The Charlie massacre in Paris 7/1 is a reminder of that.

Anyways, - there were some kind of stone-age psychology and stone-age psychiatry at the times of the prophets. It is quite (psycho-) logical, since 'psyche' means 'soul' and therefore relates to a wide range of theologies, myths and believes. Religions are closely related to psychology and talked through in UU 2014.okt.10: "Religion is also called 'the first philosophy'. It concerns any major unanswered question and not merely the theological ones (UU 2013.des.27). Therefore, the 3x3 model's ego-state 'Belief' is a general substitute for Freud's Superior-Ego. This means that laws, ethics and rituals are included. Moreover, the 3x3 model adds the 3 levels; UnderConscience, Conscience and OverConscience (U, C and O) to the 3 classic ego-states Id/Drive, Ego/Will and Superior-Ego/Belief (D, W and B). Temporary key-words for the ego-state Belief are: UB; Intuition, obsessions, rituals, psychosis. CB; Philosophy, religion, politics, ethics. OB; [S-E] Traditions, rituals, superstitions, hypnosis (and memes)". The models are described in English in UU 2014.sept.12." Furthermore: "'Belief' is an extended substitute for Superior-Ego. The reason is that Jung's theories include 'religious psychology'. However, 3x3 Belief also includes any belief-system, like theories of anthropology and any science."

Religion is not merely fundamental for psychology, but consequently to psychiatry as well. Uses and abuses of drugs has always been highly related to psychiatry. Plants are older than humans and psychotic drugs are especially grown in the middle-east regions, where the monotheisms were made. As talked through in UU 2014.aug.01 and UU 2014.dec.19: "Hallucinations/psychosis occurs mostly by poisoning or brain damage. Damages can be caused by Alzheimer, brain tumor, Parkinson and syphilis. Poisoning can be caused by narcotic hallucinogen drugs or lack of vitamin B. In brief, the categories of drugs are; psychedelic drugs like LSD and mescaline (hallucinogens), euphoria drugs like hashish, paralyzing drugs like morphine and heroin, in addition to central-stimulating drugs like amphetamine and illegal designer drugs like XTC (dopamine), (which is counter-dosed with legal anti-dopamine by the institutional psychiatry)."

As mentioned in UU 2014.dec.19: "A related question pops up. What could be most archetypal memes of all humanity? – The rivalries of Abraham's three women and the horoscopic Belief in the Ages? (See UU 2013.des.27)" The answer in this UU Theme 'Charlie' is a definitive YES. The following UU until Easter will take a more social-psychological turn.

In Freudian psychology, an analysis will focus on unsound S-E/Id relations caused by suppression of the personality/soul (Ego). In social psychology, like family therapy, the analysis will focus on dominating parents representing S-E like patriarchy/matriarchy, and uncontrolled ulterior growth of child-like drives like Jerk/Nerd/Sulk. The 3x3 model at organizational level will focus on the same, however extended to the states called Belief and Drive. Furthermore, the Drive-related social-psychological Game LYAHF (Let's You And Him Fight) is clearly still at play after 4000 years, lately with Charlie in Paris.

The erotic song "Welcome to Medina" indicates a permanent conflict of our (Jungian) 'Secret Worlds' (UU 2014.aug.15) that should not be suppressed, projected or punished by deluded Superior-Egos.

Extra UU

As mentioned, Medina got her artistic name from a numerologist. That reminds of UU 2012.sept.28 where occult dilemmas of astrology, numerology and enneagram were talked through. A person found his matching love by astrology in the song 'Astrologen' by Magnus Ugla. However, he had to break up when he switched from astrology to numerology that predicted opposite faith for them. The ironic text indicates the fundamental complications the occult based pantheisms really are. Astronomers have tried to describe our solar system for thousands of years. They were powerful pseudo-scientists and closely related to the theocracy. At that time they 'knew' the Universe was as flat as the earth and that planets, meteorites and comets were wandering stars and presumably angels. Maps of stars and planets got childlike figurative drawings with deterministic symbols, that were abused to predict faiths and control other people. The horoscopes were misleading and primitive maps and completely useless, - at the best. However, occult astrology, based on pre-Islamic demi-gods, is still important for decision maker, - that causes wrong and even destructive decisions.
