

Goo Goo Dolls – Iris (2)

Ukens Utvalgte

Some prophets stand out in the Quran and the Bible, - like Adam, Abraham and Moses. However, at that time, there were no monotheisms, but a polytheistic myriad of gods, prophets, angels, jinns – that merged from the 3 rivaling theocracies of Persia, Egypt and Europe. A focus on a few prophets and empires is necessary to avoid overwhelming of myths, beliefs and lies. The focus is on ancient Egyptian theocracy and the rivalries with the pre-Islamic Persia. In fact, theocratic fatalities clearly show the need for in-depths social-psychological analysis at organizational level. Consequently, some following comments are quite unorthodox, - however, not blasphemous although it might be considered heretical.

About 4000 years ago, the expansions of the neighboring stone-age empires of Persia and Egypt overlapped. Their cultures were too alien and primitive for peaceful interrelations. Disagreements and misunderstandings became rivalries over lands, resources and peoples. Open wars of Thrones' armies did not settle the differences either. Neither did the Persian and Egyptian Temples' ulterior Games. The true religious philosophies were re-designed and became means for war Games of the 4th degree. For example, a tale of the ethics at play is described about the Persians capture of Pelusium from the Egyptians. The Egyptians regarded cats as sacred and would not injure them on any account. The Egyptian Polyaeus claims that the Persian Cambyses had his men carry the sacred animals in front of them under the attack. The Egyptians did not dare to shoot in fear of wounding the animals. Pelusium was stormed successfully, Egypt became the possession of Persia and Cambyses II became Egypt's Pharaoh and its twenty-seven dynasty in 500 BC.

The prophet Abraham is an archetypical patriarch of the 3 monotheisms; Judaism, Christianity and Islamism. It is often talked about, like in UU 2015.jan.23, UU 2013.aug.02 and UU 2012.jan.13. In brief, Abraham was sent from Persia to rule some newly concurred land from Egypt about 2000 BC. There was a royal reception in Egypt where Abraham brought Sarah. It is unclear what their goal was and what really happened, except that Sarah became sterile instead of pregnant. Back home, Abraham got his firstborn son Ishmael with the Egyptian 'slave' Hagar. Sarah expelled them and they might have returned to Egypt and formed a Persian-Egyptian family branch. Later stories of the prophets Moses and Jesus indicate such relations. However, the person Moses and the events are disputed when compared to other writings at that time. Nevertheless, theological Belief is not merely verifiable facts, but open for interpretations.

Moses is the main prophet of the Old Testament and important to the Torah, New Testament and the Quran. The Books of Moses tell the Creation myth 6000 years ago, the relations to Egypt, the migration and the journey until the people of Israel reached Promised Land of Canaan. Even though the tales are extensive and contradicted, - some main points are mythological important to the monotheisms. It is however not certain that Moses was a single person, or even existed.

Nevertheless, the books tell that Moses was adopted into the Egyptian royal family and raised by Egyptian royalists. He was the sole survivor after all newborn Hebrew boys were killed to avoid a prophesy of uprisings. However, Moses' tribe served as slaves for 300 years and were quite discontent about their faith. The slavery indicates that the Persians and the prophet Abraham failed in keeping the land. Moses might have been as a slave-master himself for his tribe. Prophesized or not, there were uprisings that included plagues, poisoning and child slaughter, including the Pharaoh's son (the 10 plagues of Egypt). The final tribal escape/exodus was violent with major casualties. The tribe escaped Egypt, crossed the Red Sea and settled in Canaan after 40 years, after Moses died.

Most particular is the nature of the self-proclaimed lord, and later god, God and universal creator. At the time there were no monotheism, but several rivaling theocrats promoting their personal supreme gods. The Persian polytheism consisted of angels, jinns and prophets, - as is in today's Islam. As mentioned in UU 2015.Jan.23 "The prophet Moses seems to be more influenced by a jinn than an angel. The appearance of the God's messenger, the Lord, is of smokeless fire, a desert wind and has a wrathful temperament. The prophet Moses even smashed God's 10 commandments, which should be regarded an unforgivable sin and even blasphemy." However, there were reasons for Moses overreactions. The tribe did execute most disrespectful rituals concerning an ox rather than a goat, - which indicates that the people did not consider Moses as their 'Savior'. However, using social-psychological Game analysis, it seems rather clear that the main objective of Persia, Abraham and Moses was to conquer Egypt with theocracy. Persian theocrats did not mean this minor jinn to become a supreme god, - only a temporarily Egyptian god in order to execute a CdE (Will Game category 'Coup d' Etat).

Some elaborations are found at Wikipedia. "Yahweh was the national god of the Iron Age kingdoms of Israel and Judah. The earliest reference to a deity called "Yahweh" appears in Egyptian texts of the 13th century BC. In the oldest biblical literature of that time, Yahweh is a typical ancient Near Eastern "divine warrior" who leads the heavenly army against Israel's enemies. He and Israel are bound by a covenant under which Yahweh will protect Israel and, in turn, Israel will not worship other gods. At a later period, Yahweh functioned as the dynastic cult and the god of the royal house, with the royal courts promoting him as the supreme god over all others in the pantheon (polytheism). Over time, Yahwism became increasingly intolerant of rivals, and the royal court and temple promoted Yahweh as the god of the entire cosmos, possessing all the positive qualities previously attributed to the other gods and goddesses. Towards the end of the Babylonian exile, 600 BC, the very existence of foreign gods was denied, and Yahweh was proclaimed as the creator of the cosmos and the true god of all the world. In modern Judaism, it is replaced in reading with the word Adonai, meaning Lord, and is understood to be God's proper name and to denote his mercy."

Egyptian theology, however, was rather different from the pre-Islamic. They were originally advanced astronomers and the theocracy used astronomy to predict the future of nature. However, astronomy was soon abused and astrology took over. The Pharaoh king was believed to be descended from the gods and acted as the intermediary between his people and the gods. The details of religious belief changed over time as the importance of particular gods rose and declined. Their intricate relationships shifted, - including the sun god Ra, the creator god Amun, and the mother goddess Isis. Horus represented kingship itself and the son of Ra, who ruled and regulated nature. The Pharaoh ruled and regulated society. The Egyptians had elaborate beliefs about death and the afterlife including life force Ka, the spirit Ba and the combined Akh. About 2000 BC, the Egyptians came to believe that everyone had a Ba and the possibility of a paradisiacal afterlife in the New Kingdom, - after the soul had to undergo a final judgment.

It is uncertain if the Quran reference to Alexander the Great of Macedonia/Greece as 'Dhul-Qarnayn' (The Two-Horned One). However, he conquered both Persia and Egypt by simply beheading the Persian king. This was about 200 years after a Persian became Pharaoh of Egypt with the trickery tactic of using holy cats as hostages in battle. This event made the merging of the 3 imperial theologies, including Greek gods. It is talked through in UU 2012.09.28, UU 2013.des.27 and UU 2014.juni.06: "Ennead is the Greek name for the Egyptian theological system consisting of 9 gods. It was practiced in Heliopolis (the Sun City). The theocracy was further vitalized by the Ptolemaic dynasty that stems from Alexander the Great's army chief. The Ptolemaic dynasty was considered the Savior of Egypt and a royal divinity. The enneagram includes gods like Osiris, Isis and Set, and their threesome drama that symbolized the Sun's 'death', 'resurrection' and salvation. It is commonly known that the Sun's return re-occurs every midwinter and Christmas. It is however almost unknown that its estimative climax occurs every 2150 year when the Sun itself enter a new star constellation, - a new Age. The new world Savior and King of Kings' personality is bound to the astrological psychology for the Taurus (ox), Aries (goat), Phishes (fishes), and Aquarius (waterman) etc.” As mentioned in UU 02.nov.2012: “Moses represented the Aries, Jesus the Phishes and the ‘New Age’ occultists await the next coming candidate of Aquarius. The source is from Egyptian astrology according to the video ‘Religion Comes from Ancient Astrology and Sun Worship’.” (See video link hereunder.)

What is true belief then? This UU has mainly been about un-true Belief in a philosophical sense. True Belief will be talked through in a later UU in this theme dedicated ‘Charlie’ and the Paris event of 7/1.

Nevertheless, for sanity’s sake, - there was not developed theocratic tyrannies based on folktales of Robin Hood, Santa Claus, Elves, Peter Pan or Superman. Neither should be done with folktales about angels and demons. However, done is done, - but should be reversed.

In relation to social-psychological 3x3 Game analysis, - such is not about Belief (Superior-Ego), but rather Drive (Superior-ID). There is an ancient war strategy called ‘Breed Them Out’ (BTO) that suits the Drive category AF (Animal Farm). No wonder polygamy and slavery was introduced. The men were sent to kill each other and their women became spoils of war. True theology of Temples were abused by Thrones to gain access via OverConscience Belief (OB). Although Persian drugs probably was an effective secret weapon to cause ‘dangerous memes’, they probably did not know the Egyptian counter-weapon ‘hypnosis’, - at first. The combination can cause even more ‘Dangerous Memes’. Some of the results can be read in the scripts of false prophesies. In other words, - post-stoneage warfare was far more advanced than commonly realized today. The results of humanity’s damaged mental health indicate so. A main challenge is then to prevent psychotic apocalyptic Games to rise from 3rd to 4th level and again cause irreversible 5D damages. (Basic theories of Games are talked through in UU 2014.sept.12.)

Post Script: Since it is Friday the 13th today, some previous comments of UU 04.jan.2013 about the number 13 is translated: “It is interesting to know that there actually was a 13th star constellation called ‘the serpent-bearer’ (Ophiuchus). It is special because it stretches over several ‘houses’ (constellations) and is thereby considered major (or minor). The serpent holds other constellations together and influence them. It might also relate to the symbol Caduceus/medicine for Hermes (Mercury). Today, the number 13 is mostly associated with misfortune, like the 13th apostle Jesus. Astrologically, a 13th star constellation would disturb zodiac astrological predictions and prophesies.” (See also the fascinating song ‘Astrologen’ in Extra UU 2015.Jan.23.)

The song ‘Iris’ with the Goo Goo Dolls is a visually and musically masterpiece. Iris is a Greek goddess that might relate to the Ptolemaic dynasty of Egypt and the goddess Isis. Anyhow that interpretation, the lyrics provides an exercise in trying to understand the psychology of divine myths, - that most certainly exists even though such creature might not. The song is previously presented in UU 2010.sept.10 and extra UU 21.dec.2012. The translated comment is: “There are some astonishing astronomical measures and maps the pyramid-people made at both continents (Africa and America). The Egyptians pointed out that the sun seems to set on 21/12 and rise 24/12. The Egyptians figured out that before each Era/Age (2150 years) the three stars in the Orion’s belt, and Sirius, points to the ‘resurrection’ in a new star constellation. Before Moses’ Age, there were the Taurus (ox), the Aries (ram) for Moses, and the Fishes for Jesus and there will be an Aquarius (waterman) about the year 2150 AD. In other words, there will be no New Age this century and no call for such apocalyptic genocides. (See video link hereunder.)

Taking the liberty of impulsive associations, - it is quite imaginable with a 4000 years old basket rather than a present boat. The band Madness formed in 1976, but had their breakthrough 10 years later. They had several hits and became most popular for a while. At some time, some political extremists figured the band's outfit was inappropriate to their ideological beliefs. Games were set in motion and finally split the band.

Danielle Dax is an English performer whose mysterious and experimental work reflected the strong influence of biblical mysticism and Middle Eastern musical textures. In relation to this UU, the association is the occult spin-offs from the processes of merging polytheisms into monotheisms. When her original band Lemon Kittens' split 1982, Dax mounted a solo career. She had success with the album Inky Bloaters and Dark Adapted Eye. A dominant influence on her work was Marc Bolan whose cryptic lyrics and ear for a fuzz guitar. 'Big Hollow Man' is as excellent a revamp and updating of the classic T. Rex acoustic/electric boogie.
